Overview

Emily Cronin represents plaintiffs and defendants in high-stakes, complex civil litigation covering a wide array of practice areas. She has handled cases involving patent infringement, false claims, defamation, contract disputes, fraud, and environmental law, and secured victories for her clients in both federal and state court. No matter the subject area, Emily confidently tackles complicated issues and translates them into winning arguments for her clients.

In 2021, Emily and her team successfully represented a group of relators in their California False Claims Act suit against a large international construction contractor. As an integral member of the trial team, Emily handled over a dozen depositions of the contractor's key witnesses, took and defended the depositions of both side's damages experts, and helped argue and win summary judgment and discovery motions in state court. In a patent infringement suit, Emily and her team represented the plaintiff who accused pornography provider MindGeek of video streaming activity that infringed a patent portfolio developed at USC's Shoah Foundation to catalog videos of Holocaust survivors. Emily argued and won discovery motions, defended depositions, managed a team of source code experts, and helped secure her client's settlement. Emily was also part of the initial team from Susman Godfrey that filed a \$1.6 billion dollar defamation lawsuit against Fox News Media on behalf of Dominion Voting Systems.
