Overview

Floyd Short is a trial lawyer with more than 30 years of experience litigating and trying complex cases on behalf of plaintiffs and defendants in state and federal courts throughout the United States. He has achieved great results for his clients in high stakes cases involving patent infringement, trade secret misappropriation, breach of contract and other corporate and financial disputes, health care, ERISA, antitrust, unfair competition, and bankruptcy litigation. Mr. Short also represents individuals in False Claims Act qui tam actions, white collar criminal matters, and SEC and other government investigations, as well as consumers in antitrust and intellectual property class actions.

The common thread running through every one of Mr. Short's cases is his ability to master his client's objectives, technology, products, and services to secure the best possible outcome. He takes pride in his ability to learn and explain complex issues and advocate his client's position to judge and jury in a clear and persuasive manner.

Mr. Short has been recognized for his skills and leadership by lawyers and judges alike. He has been named a Washington Super Lawyer every year since 2014 (Thomson Reuters) and has held a Peer Review Rating of AV® Preeminent™ (5.0 out of 5.0) from Martindale-Hubbell since 2013. Mr. Short is a Master of the IP Inn of Court, served on the Board of Trustees of the King County Bar Association from 2017-2020, and previously served as the President of the Federal Bar Association of the Western District of Washington (WDWA) and a Lawyer Representative to the Ninth Circuit Judicial Conference by appointment of the WDWA federal judges.

Before joining Susman Godfrey, Mr. Short was a federal prosecutor and the Supervisor of the Complex Crimes Unit of the U.S. Attorney's Office for the Western District of Washington, where he specialized in white collar criminal cases involving securities fraud, investment fraud, financial fraud, Internet and computer crime, and intellectual property crime.

At the beginning of his legal career, Mr. Short served as a law clerk to the Honorable Betty Fletcher of the United States Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit.
