

Bill Carmody

PARTNER

2021 – WeWork v. SoftBank

Represented WeWork founder Adam Neumann in his billion-dollar clash with SoftBank. On the eve of trial, reached a confidential settlement where SoftBank reportedly paid $1B to shareholders plus $50M in Neumann's legal fees. Considered to be one of the century's largest individual claims.

The New York Times May 5, 2020

Adam Neumann, WeWork's Former Chief, Sues SoftBank

Adam Neumann, a co-founder of WeWork, sued SoftBank on Monday, accusing it of breaching a contract by withdrawing an offer to buy up to $3 billion in WeWork stock from Mr. Neumann and other shareholders.

SoftBank, a Japanese conglomerate that has invested in many... Click to read more.

The New York Times February 26, 2021

WeWork's Path to Markets Is Cleared as Co-Founder and SoftBank Settle Suit.

Adam Neumann, a WeWork co-founder, and SoftBank, the co-working company's largest shareholder, announced on Friday that they had settled their legal dispute, opening the way for WeWork to go public just 16 months after SoftBank... Click to read more.